FOREWORD

Time and growth can be synonymous. Maturity, whether it be of an individual or an institution, is exciting. We, the Seniors of Bloomfield College, have been caught up in this dynamic period, have felt this growth, and have hopefully contributed to it.

Our College has witnessed both change and improvement, and the same is true of the members of its student body. Although we realize that time can never be recaptured, it has been our endeavor to get a glimpse of those people and inspirations that have enlightened and fulfilled our four years growth at Bloomfield.

*Professor of History
Harry T. Taylor*

Dedication

"A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."—Henry Brooks Adams

Once in a great while there is a professor with the ability to inspire his students with his grasp of his subject, to foster a desire for a more complete understanding, to comprehend the needs of his students. His judgement, grace and encouragement stimulate and sustain a large part of the effort required in the process of education.

His treatment of the past reflects a need for the intellectual approach to the problems of the present. If he has served as a stimulus to further thought and to worthier efforts in a wise and learned manner, his purpose will be accomplished.

As a student of History, he employs the words of others to illuminate his own, and does so with unusual frequency and telling effect. His quotations range widely—from Macaulay to Churchill, from Ben Franklin to Abraham Lincoln—demonstrating that the lessons of the past may hold the key to the future.

There are moments in speaking of the cause of human freedom when his words move with a measured passion. Plainly he has humility, scruples, and care about what he thinks, writes, and says. He attempts to mislead no one, hoping his words will stand up and make sense and perhaps wisdom for his own time and later times.

The Class of 1964 takes a great measure of pride and humility in dedicating this year's Saga to the man we think exemplifies beyond measure the finest qualities of Bloomfield College . . . Professor of History, Harry T. Taylor.

CLASS ADVISOR

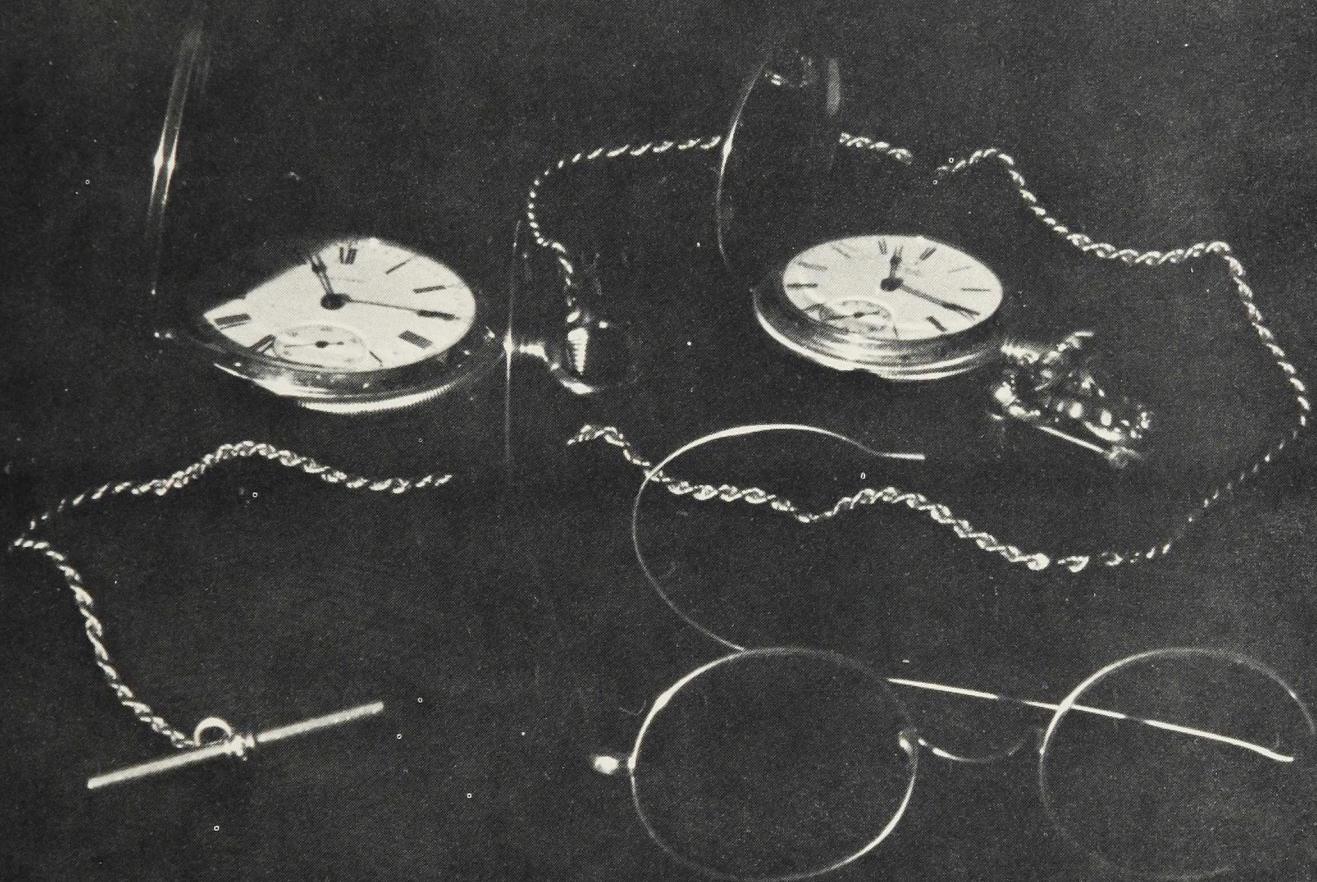

To the Class Advisor, Mr. George G. Roush:

Combining your talents this year as advisor and educator, you have handled the ever-increasing problems of an expanding college. Your quick humor and sympathetic counseling could be felt in almost all phases of campus life.

For your constant cheerfulness, for your willing assistance, for your warm friendship, we thank you most sincerely, Mr. George G. Roush.

The Class of 1964

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

President Rath's Message

A Thought for Reflection:

Only in these four years of college will so many people go to such lengths to help me share in the riches of knowledge.

Another:

Competent industrial leaders are saying that in our changing technology, an engineer needs to learn new skills and methods every ten years.

Actually, we all need regular renewal and intellectual stimulation. I hope I have learned to enjoy the adventure of continued study, good reading, and thoughtful conversation.

My very best wishes to the Class of '64.

In Memoriam

DAVID D. MERCER

A tribute by President Theodore A. Rath

“We thank thee for thy servant, David
For his valiant service to the two countries to which he belonged by birth and by education.
For his love of the sea and its ships,
For the contribution he made at Bloomfield
to his students, to our faculty,
And for all the varied associations of his life.”

May we cherish the memory of David D. Mercer

September of 1960 marked the first step on the long road to graduation for the class of 1964 ... A great deal happened during that four year period — both to the college community and the world.

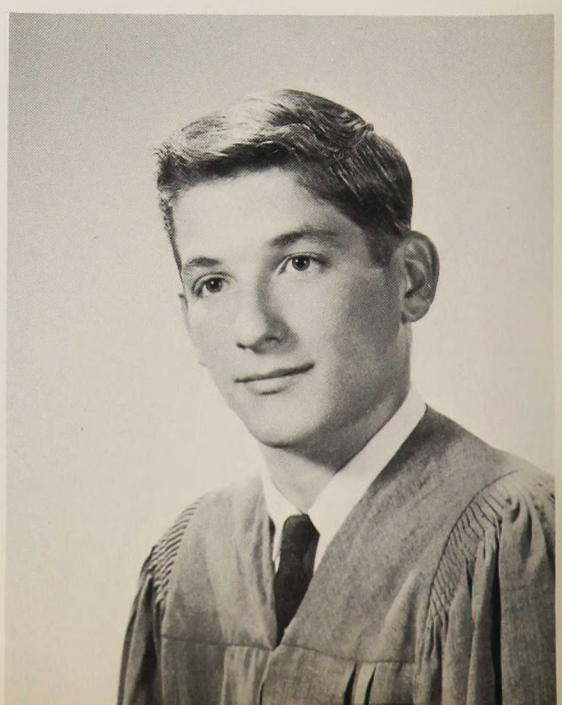

In September of 1960 Bloomfield College came of age with the arrival of the class of 1964. The class was the largest in the history of the school and in one year doubled the total enrollment of the college.

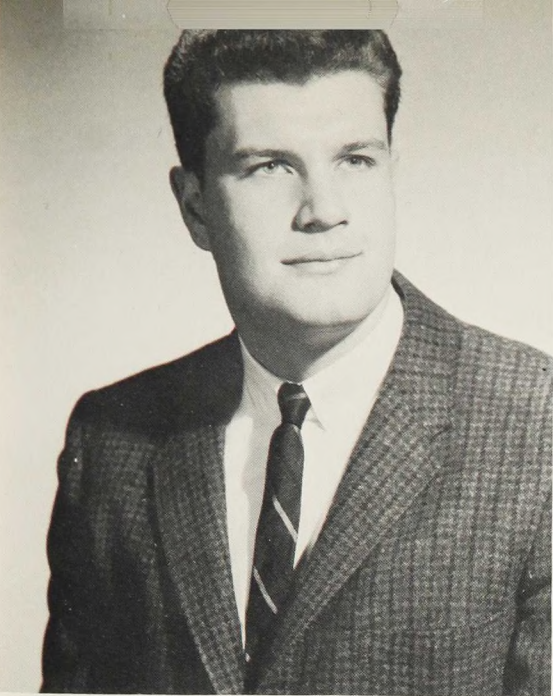

The first weeks of the freshman year of college ...

... the class tried to give Bloomfield College a significant position within the community. In the spring of that year the first class of 1964 concert was held, a jazz concert. This gave Bloomfield College a new position in its dealings with the surrounding community and the neighboring colleges.

President Kennedy faced his first major test in the spring of 1961 when a group of Cuban exiles were defeated in the ill-advised Bay of Pigs invasion. The nation rallied behind the President and in June of 1961 he told Premier Khrushchev in Vienna that the United States would stand firm in Berlin.

1961 also saw the first large-scale dramatic production, "Finian's Rainbow", ever done at the college. There was a new school spirit among the student body which was manifested in the sports activities.

The end of the freshman year saw Bloomfield becoming a school worthy of the name "college". The facilities of the college expanded greatly.

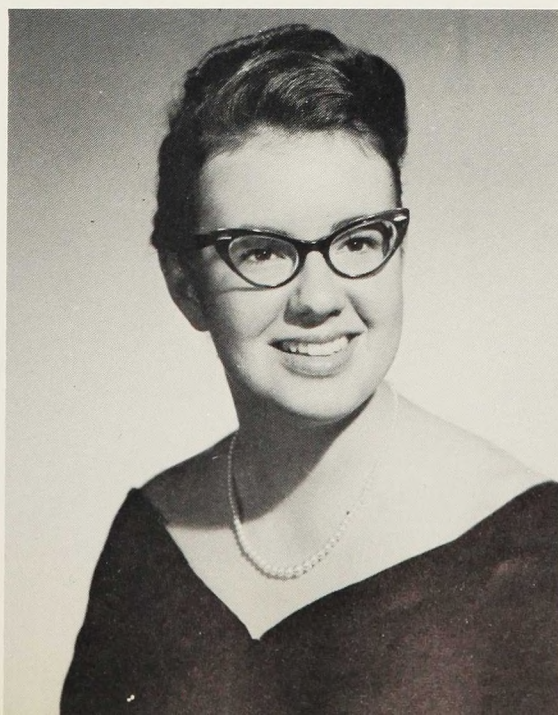

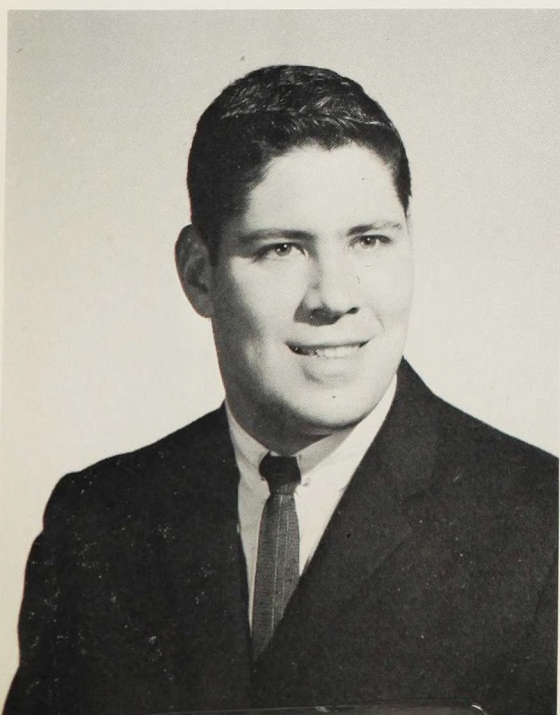

The old houses on the corner of Liberty Street and Austin Place were demolished to make room for the new men's dormitory. Additional classroom space was assured by the acquisition of Austin Hall.

The first year of the class of 1964 was a year of building and developing, a year of seriousness and fun.

September of 1961 brought an eager and excited class back to Bloomfield ready to face the coming school year. Traditions stemmed from the sophomore year. Under the leadership of President Mike Bono we moved forward with spirited enthusiasm on an all-out campaign to revitalize school spirit.

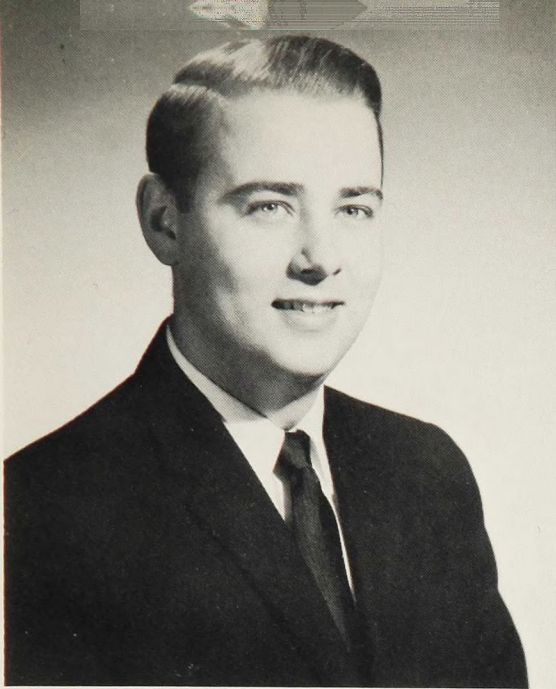

Our first efforts were poured into the Freshman Initiation Program. The success of this program and the traditions which followed, such as prohibiting the freshmen to use the "sacred walk" in the center of the quad, reflected . . .

The college community sat fascinated in front of their television sets as Astronaut John Glenn became the first American to circle the globe. Glenn's orbital trips were major steps in America's race to catch Russia in the Space Race.

As the folk-singing craze spread throughout the country, so did it come to the Bloomfield Campus in the spring of the year. The sophomore class sponsored the first folk-singing concert on the campus with the well-known group, the Journeymen. The interest shown in this program ...

September of 1962 found the class a year older and possibly more aware of the growing responsibilities placed upon it. No longer was the initiation rite a part of class life. Class members were following a course schedule that finished the core curriculum and enabled them to take a higher concentration of courses in their major fields of study. The junior year was to be a year of excitement and growing horizons as the class came closer to its end.

All looked forward to the long awaited and much needed Christmas vacation. The senior dance in the gym was one of the social highlights of the year. And President Kennedy was in Bermuda with Prime Minister MacMillan to discuss methods of strengthening British military power.

The Bloomfield College Touring Choir continued to work diligently to promote the name of the college. They toured several of the nearby states during the Christmas vacation and also appeared on television. This was an idea initiated by Dr. Clee and continued as a public relations program by Dr. Rath.

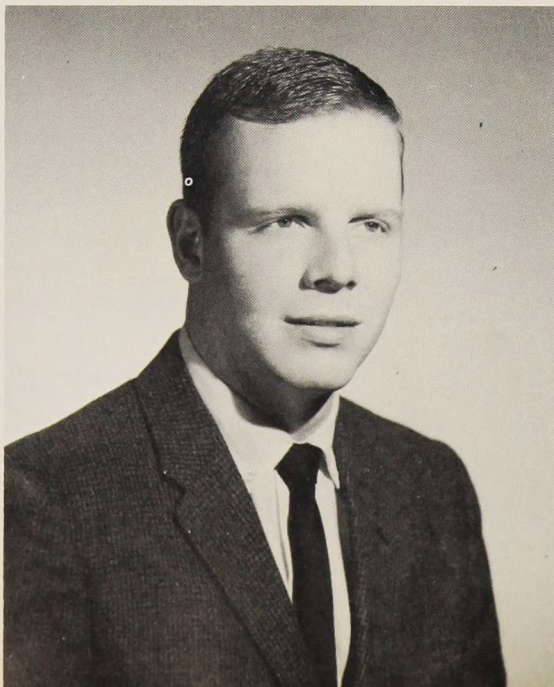

The basketball season was the focal point of the athletic season for Bloomfield. The team was headed by Randy Trawick and Jim Jenkins. They pushed the team to the conference championship and the regional playoff at Ryder College. Along the way Trawick scored his one thousandth point.

A new organization on campus that proved to be very popular was the Ski Club. Gathering members as they went along, they made trips to Vermont and New York State ski areas. There were bruises and aching muscles but only one injury — the advisor to the club, Mr. Mac-Millan, missed a sharp turn and fractured a rib in the fall.

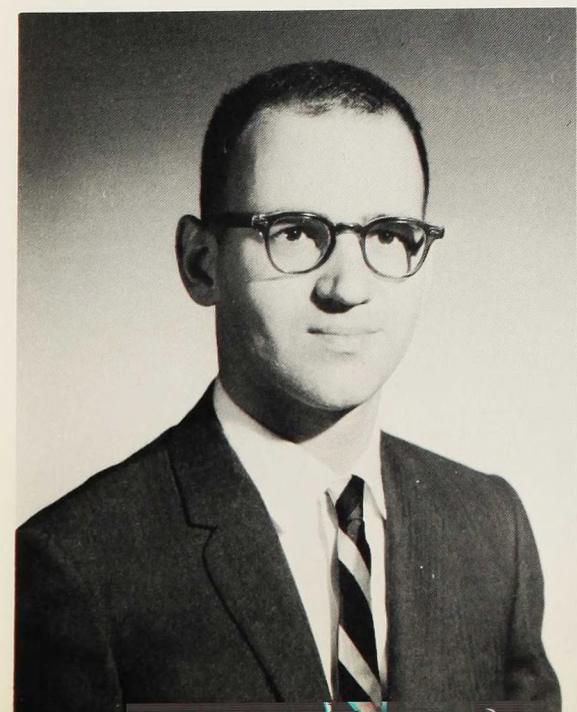

The Bloomfield College Student Association led by Ken Rouse and Eddie Hightower showed strong leadership and its spirit was felt by the student body. A foreign student panel provided the opportunity for foreign students to present their views on America.

Elections held in the spring of 1963 saw Eddie Hightower chosen President of the B.C.S.A. Elected to lead the class of 1964 in its final year at Bloomfield College were Harold Freider, President; Joe Wilcox, Vice-President; Peggy Moeller, Secretary; and Les Lustbader, Treasurer.

The highlight of the early spring was the B.C.S.A. sponsored semi-formal dance. Each class selected a class queen to compete in the contest for Campus Queen. At the dance it was announced that Vickie Sylvan was the Campus Queen for the coming year. But when she did not return to school, the holder of the next highest number of votes, Linda Goode, became Campus Queen.

Spring had come and with it the promise of final examinations. But another year had ended; much had happened during that year, and there was the promise of more to come in the next year, the last year, the Senior year.

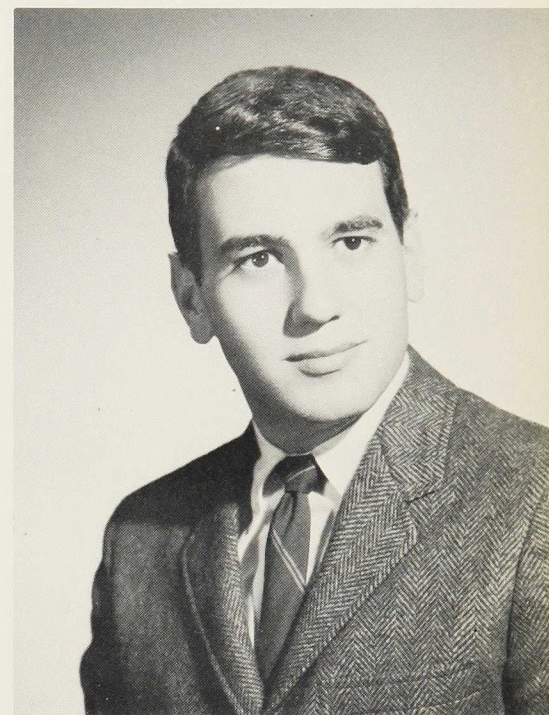

The fall of 1963 heralded for the Senior class the final step on the road to graduation. Three years of study and fun lay behind and the members of the class became more acutely aware that this would be their final year at Bloomfield College. Three years ago it had all begun in the flurry and frenzy of the freshman year. At that time it had seemed as if there were all the time in the world; now there was awareness of missed opportunity and wasted time but a determination to grasp the opportunities of the present and future.

June came ever closer. The time was filled with many and varied events. But then it was over. Final exams were taken amid the tension of final uncertainty. But the exhilaration made it all worthwhile. There had been much in the past; and there would be much in the future. But we have begun. Neither wind nor tide is always with us. Looking forward to its concluding phase of campus life, the class of 1965 is diligently working for a memorable senior year. In conjunction with its officers, this class has set high goals of growth and development in order to keep that sense of integrity which is synonymous with Bloomfield College.

May their final year be as successful and productive as possible so as to perpetuate their past achievements.

FRESHMEN

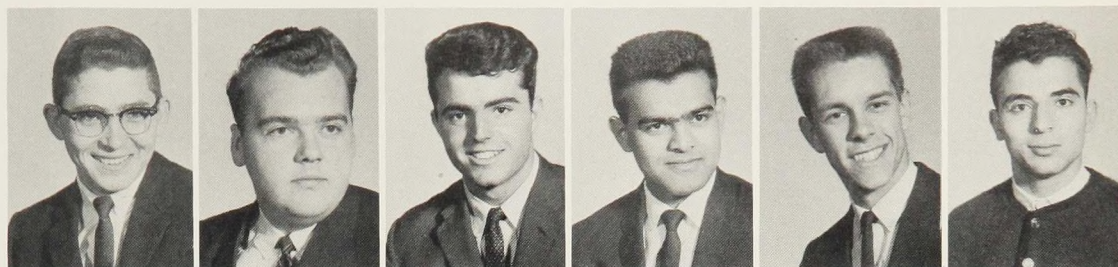

William Clemens President
Robert Williamson Vice President
Paul Bonelli Treasurer

Bringing a fresh wave of enthusiasm to Bloomfield the class of 1967 is moving forward, in an attempt to make a place for itself within the college community. The freshmen have shown considerable poise and a developing sense of duty during their first year.

With careful guidance and co-operation the members of this class will be capable of carrying on the growth of Bloomfield College when it is left to them by their predecessors.

Great competitiveness by all members of the soccer team afforded them the most dynamic record, (9-3-2), in the history of the College and the Central Atlantic Conference for the second straight year. Establishing a new Bloomfield College scoring record, Klaus Hemmert has proved unstoppable on the field and should be the central figure in next year's campaign. Co-captains Bill Maguire and John Sauer have shown their dependability on the field throughout the season. Showing a fine effort in his department, goalie Ken Tompkins has produced three shut-out games. Instilled with the drive of Coach Reeves, this year's champions will undoubtedly prove to be the undefeated team of next year.

"Valiant Deacon effort."

With Basketball being the most celebrated sport at Bloomfield College, the team has shown spirit and drive in every game. Under the competent supervision of coaches Robert Nichols and Al Restaino, the hoopsters have continued to display their superb skill, inspired by large crowds and the victory-seeking chants of the cheerleaders. With the return of Frank Giovannucci and the fine ball control of Red Groeling, the playmaking is excellent. Under the boards, George Wuschnig, a freshman, has shown a remarkable ability in rebounding and scoring. Nick Sapanaro concluding his third year on the varsity squad has proven a steady scorer under pressure.

"George and Fred rebound for Bloomfield."

"Fighting hard for victory."

It has been apparent, as always, that sportsmanship is a strong and continued characteristic of the basketball team.

J. V. BASKETBALL

Consistently through the season the playing of the J.V. basketball team has been impressive. Each player has been cognizant of his task and the composure which was shown complimented the team. An integral factor in the success of coach John Reeves, who instills his boys with an unyielding will, has been the flawless shooting of Robert Byers and Paul Mulvaney. These two, along with Ian Nelson and the other deacons, have made their presence felt in a combined effort for victory. With such talent, the basketball outlook for Bloomfield College is indeed bright and prosperous.

CHEER

In an effort to gain a maximum of student participation and to cultivate a strong interest in the basketball team, the cheerleaders have set an unequalled precedent. With only eight members, these girls have colorfully heightened each game of the basketball season.

In keeping with the growing tradition of the college, which can be seen in many departments, the new varsity tennis team plays a major roll. Coached by Mr. Gus Lanna, who is passing on his prowess to the younger netmen, the team is looking forward to a fine future. Under the leadership of Doug Davies, the captain and originator, and with the credentials of Ron Allen, a transfer who was rated no. 1 at Waynesburg College, much is in the offing. Showing great potential are Al Altman and Jerry Blumenfeld. Their joint superiority on the tennis court makes them formidable doubles partners. With eight members the tennis team is looking forward to much growth and development which should coincide with more impressive records throughout the coming spring seasons.

GOLF TEAM

A national pastime which has made its presence felt at Bloomfield is golf. The high appeal around campus of the golf team is evidenced by a complete anticipation for victory on the part of students and faculty.

Confronted by a number of difficult matches, the players have faced such impressive teams as Montclair State, Paterson State . . . and Rutgers (Newark) . . . Perhaps the most hard-fought round which provided victory for the Bloomfield golfers was the Monmouth College encounter. Paced by the accurate putting and driving of Rick Boschen and John Sauer, the golf team is a desired asset which heightens the integrity of Bloomfield College athletics.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Comprising thirteen teams, the intramural basketball program has grown to an all-time high. Through the efforts of Coach John Reeves, Harold Frieder, and Floyd LaDue, this excellent competitive and recreational program was a success. After a play-off of the top teams, individual trophies were awarded at the annual athletic banquet.

The Bloomfield College Student Association serves as the official voice of the student body. The purpose of its existence is to promote fuller understanding, cooperation and representation among students, faculty, administration and the general public. The Student Association also supports, provides, and encourages social and extra-curricular activities not included in the official program of the institution. It also allocates money to various clubs and groups and concerns itself with both academic and social matters pertaining to the general welfare of the student body.

Indeed, the original aim of the B.C.S.A., that of providing a better understanding of government and unity, is being achieved.

Catholic Club

Started in 1962, the Catholic Club is still in its infancy. Its main objective is to discuss Roman Catholicism. The club is open to all faiths and welcomes discussion of different topics concerning dogmatic and traditional ways of the religion. By working with the other fellowships in the Religious Life Council, the Catholic Club seeks to bring a more meaningful experience to Bloomfield College students.

This year the Protestant Fellowship has embarked on a program to bring the dynamics of the Christian faith to the student body of Bloomfield College. Under study during the course of the year were big city gangs, the over-privileged in suburbia, and the thrills and dangers of drug-taking.

Under the leadership of Jim Doyle and Lynn Stewart, the fellowship has endeavored to make Christianity relevant to the lives of the whole campus community. The Fellowship has and will continue to be open to all those who have an interest in the organization and its activities.

Jewish Student Organization

The members of the Jewish Student Organization realize the importance of religious values in character development. Because of this realization, the objectives of this organization are, to provide a forum on campus where all students can learn the moral and religious teachings of Judaism, and to encourage social activities both within and without the Jewish group. Through educational, religious, and charitable programs the Jewish Student Organization has fulfilled its objectives.

The Society for the Promotion of Better Human Understanding is a new organization on campus this year. Its purpose is concern for better human relations among all races, colors, creeds, and nationalities. Its aim is to make the students of Bloomfield College aware of the problems confronting our country and the world, and to try to help them develop positive attitudes toward all peoples.

The program includes discussions of vital social problems, films, guest speakers, and active participation in civic affairs. With the aid of Mr. Abrams as advisor, the Society has been successful in these programs and activities.

El Circulo Espanol

El Circulo Espanol has been in existence for only two years, but it has already done much to broaden the foreign cultural aspect of Bloomfield College.

The Club, under the guidance of Dr. Evangeline Ortega and Dr. Jose R. S. Vazquez, has as its fundamental purpose the developing of a greater fluency of the Spanish language. In order to acquaint members with Spanish customs, literature, art, history, and music, related excursions are taken to Spanish restaurants, movies, and concerts. Discussions are held concerning the views of North and South Americans.

BUSINESS CLUB

The Bloomfield College Business Club began in 1963 with approximately 40 members. This year membership totals some 60 students, most of whom are accounting or business administration majors. The Club meets every other Friday with the purpose of showing motion pictures pertaining to the business world, having guest speakers from industry, and field trips to industries in the area. The Club has applied for membership as a chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, a business profession society in colleges across the country. Professor John M. Woodbridge is senior advisor and his associates are Mr. Lanna and Mr. Tomlinson.

An interest and desire for a literary magazine resulted in the appearance last year of the QUADRANGLE. This magazine attempts to mirror the life and thought of the college students by printing their original literary achievements in poetry, essays, fiction, and non-fiction.

Because of its novelty, the QUADRANGLE was slow in starting. This year, however, the members of the staff feel that the ensuing popularity of the magazine is making it a part of campus life, and they are looking forward to the QUADRANGLE'S future.

Under the leadership of President Fred Shaw, with the advisorship of Mr. Thomas Platt, the Arts and Science Club has made great progress in furthering the cultural atmosphere on the Bloomfield College campus.

In existence for only three years, this organization has become the largest on campus, because of its diversified functions. Films such as the Titan, Mastery of Space, One God, and Ancient Egypt have highlighted the monthly events which were introduced by members of the faculty. In addition the club has arranged a touring trip to New England and a visit to New York to see a noted Broadway play.

BLOOMFIELD COLLEGE SKI CLUB

As the first snowfall arrived this year, the Bloomfield College Ski Club eagerly anticipated a season even more exciting than that of last year. Now in its second year, the Ski Club has increased its membership and has introduced the sport of skiing to many on the college campus.

With Mr. Albert Tomlinson as advisor to a group, ranging from the snow bunny to schuss-boomer, the club organized trips to Vermont, the Catskills, and Lake Placid. Everyone had fun at the winter carnival held on the last trip of the season.

Even though the snow melts away in the spring, the club stays active as water skiing replaces snow skiing. A beach party, with water skiing, rounded the year off right as members went home for summer vacation with many fond memories and anticipation of the '64 season.

The Interfraternity Council, established last year, is the governing body of the three college fraternities in matters affecting more than one fraternity, as well as being a forum for the discussion of their common problems and goals. Under its adviser, Dean David O. Roberts, the Council also works hard at planning activities that would be difficult for a single fraternity to sponsor. An example of what it can do was the program it planned which provided Bloomfield College students with a full weekend of activities, from open houses, to ice skating and a buffet dance. The Interfraternity Council will develop as the College grows.

Since the establishment of their fraternity in 1957, the brothers of Rho Sigma Delta have continued to fulfill the purpose of their organization, service and social betterment. Examples of this are the Christmas Party, movies, and a trip they provided for under privileged children. They have also served the College by helping to make its activities successful and by promoting its ideas. Among other activities for members are the fraternity's intramural football and basketball teams, and a bowling team.

In the third year after its establishment on our campus, Delta Phi Chi continues to strive for the promotion of brotherhood and good scholarship among its members and the students of Bloomfield College. It has been recognized for this by being awarded the Lester H. Clee Award for Scholarship twice. The fraternity is also active in other areas of student life on campus. In their meetings, the members always have the purpose of a close social fellowship in view.

J. DeLucca, Treas.; A. Cattafi, V-Pres.; T. Hart, Pres.; L. Bruno, Sec.; N. Saponara, Sgt.-at-arms.

TAU ALPHA KAPPA

This year, Bloomfield College's first fraternity, Tau Alpha Kappa, which was founded in 1956, organized Bloomfield's first Alumni Association. The fraternity's activities are always founded upon its ideals of the promotion of brotherhood, leadership, and sportsmanship. It supports and participates in the intercollegiate and intramural sports of the college, and other college activities, as well as sponsoring its own functions with famous entertainers. The brothers of Tau Alpha Kappa have established a good reputation for their fraternity at Bloomfield.

FEATURES

Miss Linda Goode

Each spring the Student Association selects the Campus Queen of Bloomfield College and her attendants from the co-eds nominated by each class. The Campus Queen this year is Miss Linda Goode, a fair-haired sophomore. Miss Goode's poise, pleasant personality, and beauty add greatly to our campus. Her court includes Mrs. Phyllis Ims and Miss Ruth Paszula, seniors; Miss Elizabeth Weber, a junior; and Miss Edwina Marron, a sophomore.

Junior Class

From The

The Class of '65 wishes the graduating senior class all success and happiness in their future endeavors. This Senior Class, has set distinct precedents, which will be remembered in future years. The impression they left will be clearly evident in the history of Bloomfield College. Their spirit and innovations have been instilled in the minds of the underclassmen.

We, the Junior Class, now take their place, but we will have to strive feverishly to live up to the high standards which were characteristic of this superlative group.

Editor's Message

Headaches are as much a part of putting together an annual like the SAGA 1964 as are photographs, deadlines, and feature articles. This year the staff has incorporated new ideas which we hope will lead to still higher standards in future years. The addition of the Senior Class History will enable these graduates to recall many of the highlights of their four years. New emphasis has also been placed upon the underclassmen, with the inclusion of their individual pictures. These goals, which were set in September of 1963, at times seemed almost too ambitious when considering the interest many of our students exhibited toward them. This means that much of the work load fell upon the shoulders of a very few who worked diligently in order that all could reap the harvest. Anxieties, frustrations, and sweat have been created by this endeavor, but it has been worth the effort. The satisfaction of the job lies in knowing that you have faced the task to the best of your ability.

To those few who did give of their time and talents I would like to express my sincere appreciation, for without them this annual could not exist. Particular appreciation is extended to Lynn Klinefelter whose knowledge of photography, helpful advice, and eager willingness to do the job, has saved the SAGA much time and money, and to Patty Novak for the many hours spent on page layouts, proofreading, and all the odd jobs no one would do.

To the graduating class of 1964, may I take this opportunity to wish each and every one success and fulfillment in the forthcoming years.
